

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus, including computer program products, for processing documents in a workflow system with users external to the system.

5 An electronic document is generated in a workflow system. The electronic document has content and a document appearance, where the appearance represents the content. One or more control codes are generated for the electronic document as part of a workflow in the workflow system, where the control codes are usable to validate the content. A print out including the document appearance and the one or more control codes is created.

50176521.doc